PROGRAM DESCRIPTION

Employers and employees across the construction industry need to be aware that Louisiana has implemented updates to its Louisiana State Uniform Construction Code, effective Jan. 1, 2023.

Join us for a presentation discussing the implementation of these changes by Adams and Reese construction practice attorneys Susan Eccles and Katelin Varnado. Susan and Katelin highlight the specific modifications, purposes for adopting these new codes, and recommended best practices emerging from the new rules.

FEATURED SPEAKER

Susan Eccles serves as the Partner in Charge of the Adams and Reese Baton Rouge office, while maintaining a diverse legal practice centered on construction, state and federal procurement/government contracts, commercial litigation, and professional liability. She has been recognized by clients and peers among Louisiana's Rising Stars in Government Contracts. Susan recently earned a Certificate in Construction Management, graduating from LSU's Post-Baccalaureate Program. She received her J.D. from Loyola University New Orleans College of Law and earned her B.A. from Loyola University New Orleans.

Katelin Varnado is an Associate in the Adams and Reese Baton Rouge office, representing clients in construction disputes, property disputes, government relations matters, general liability, and commercial litigation. She also advises clients on contract interpretation and enforcement, business formation and corporate governance, and various labor and employment matters. She is recognized by clients and peers among Louisiana's Rising Stars in Employment & Labor. Katelin received both her B.S. and J.D. from Louisiana State University.
